

THRIVE

THRIVE—short for Thinking Retirement: Identity, Vocation, and Economics—is a two-day retirement planning seminar that addresses retirement preparation holistically. It explores the larger issues members face when transitioning to retirement, and covers subject matters such as financial planning and retirement healthcare options.

WHO IT'S FOR

Benefits Plan members within 10 years of retirement and their spouses and surviving spouses, including part-time employees who are enrolled in any benefit from the Benefits Plan

WHAT YOU'LL LEARN

In this seminar, you will:

- Identify key questions for discernment in planning for retirement.
- Assess finances, including options for saving before retirement, and develop appropriate expectations for retirement living.
- Discuss spiritual, physical, and mental health issues related to aging.
- Create next steps in these areas essential to well-being: identity, vocation, and economics.
- Discover tools and resources for do-it-yourself retirement preparation.
- Acquire knowledge to confidently transition to, and ultimately thrive in, retirement.

"I would recommend the seminar because it provides reminders of issues I had not anticipated fully and answers to specific questions I had asked elsewhere but had not been able to have answered. It also gave me dedicated time to think critically about retirement issues."
